[redacted] Bill Darden, Senate Armed Services Committee staff, telephoned indicating that Senator Russell had heard of the polling of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and wanted to be reassured that he was not going to be scooped. Also Senator Russell wanted to suggest the possible approach to the problem of first a briefing of the CIA Subcommittee, then a briefing of the full Committee, both without Powers and then consider whether or not to have Powers before the Committee. I indicated to Darden that this seemed very sensible and assured him that in my opinion Mr. McCone definitely wished to cooperate fully with Senator Russell on this matter.
